COUPLES CONNECTING

The sense of wholeness we all seek as individuals takes place best within a loving and conscious relationship. The Couples Connecting weekend will help couples observe and practice specific skills and processes to help them connect more honestly and lovingly with each other. Participants will learn about the natural “life cycle” of a relationship and how to nurture and maintain healthy intimacy within the ebb and flow of their relationship. Couples will also be guided in how to keep the “sacred fire” of their connection flourishing after they leave the workshop (and even have some fun along the way!).

Helping men realize and appreciate their natural ability to be sensitive participants in the primary relationships of their lives has always been a fundamental purpose of the Victories program. This workshop will provide essential understanding of relationship dynamics. It will also demonstrate and give time to practice foundational and crucial skills for engendering and maintaining a truly nourishing and loving relationship.

This weekend is open to all couples in a committed relationship. This weekend is not marital therapy and is not appropriate for couples in crisis or with serious marital discord. This weekend is appropriate for couples wanting to deepen their connection and communication.

COVID POLICY

- Masking is always an option, but not required
- For residential programs a Covid-19 medical form is included in the participant registration packet and must be filled out by all attendees
- All participants and staff must take a Covid At-Home test just prior to attending a Victories in-person program
- Wellness screening may occur during any Victories program including Covid At-Home tests, temperature checks and general health questions.
- Post-event contact tracing and notification may occur if Victories is notified of possible attendee exposure to Covid-19
