Victories' weekend programs initiate new awareness for the participants, with Personal Growth Groups (PGG) building upon that awareness and promoting ongoing personal development. The initial energy that follows the weekend experience has a tendency to wane, resulting in lower attendance and willingness to participate. The pandemic created a shift to virtual meetings, which may have further reduced group energy. This workshop introduces ways that can re-energize your PGG and sustain active connections with your brothers.

You will:

- Learn “group killers” that impair the effectiveness of a PGG.
- Hear from men about what works to re-ignite their group's energy and enhance its cohesion.
- Explore how national events, such as the social justice movement, intersect a PGG and its authenticity.
