Men's self-identities often revolve around our work. For some, this is a pathway toward contentment and possibly fulfillment. For others, this is a pathway toward self-doubt and frustration. In this Round table, we explore this and other work-related issues, such as personal traps we may find.

By the close of this gathering, we will be able to:

- Assess how our work influences our self-identities
- Identify our key values which we may or may not find in our jobs.
- Examine ways to adjust our work-life balance as needed.
